

David J Powell

David Powell is English and qualified as a land surveyor in the Royal Engineers having attended the School of Military Survey. After practising as a land surveyor for 15 years, David established his own firm in Ringwood, Hampshire, and, in the past 30 years, he and his firm have operated as surveyors and consultants throughout Europe and the West Indies. David was a founding member of the RICS (Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors) "Boundaries Panel", is a past chairman of the land surveying division of the RICS, is a current member of the Land Registry Rules Committee and the author of the "Anstey's Boundary Disputes" series of books. David is committed to furthering mediation and alternative dispute resolution in property disputes and is also keen to help young surveyors in the early part of their journey through their professional lives. In recent years, David has given talks on the futility of cadastral (fixed-boundary) systems in Cairo, Barbados, Trinidad & Tobago, Oslo, Bergen and Athens. David is also a frequently disillusioned supporter of West Bromwich Albion Football Club, alleviated only by his love of Mediterranean wine and cuisine.
